

Retracting purchase fair

-----
Par barbouille12

Bonjour,

I made this weekend a purchase of furniture at the fair in Tours. From tomorrow, I contacted the seller because, after reflection, I wanted to return on my decision. He refused the annulment of the order, on the grounds of the absence of right of withdrawal.

This absence of right of withdrawal was not orally notified to me, but it is unprovable.

The order form that I signed understands well this mention, but it is in small characters, at the bottom of the sheet. It seems to me to have understood (in article 2 of the Arrêté of December 2, 2014 relating to the modalities of information on the absence of withdrawal deadline to the benefit of the consumer in fairs and salons) that this mention must be in the top of the order form, and framed.

Is this a valid reason to annul the sale ?

Thank you in advance for your response

Cordialement

Barbara Lamy

-----
Par morobar

Bonjour,

This absence of right of withdrawal was not orally notified to me, but it is unprovable.

It doesn't matter, nothing obliges the seller to remind him.

The only obligation is the labeling on the stand indicating the absence of the right of withdrawal.

Is this a valid reason to annul the sale ?

You must display (photos, witnesses...) the absence of any panel on the stand reminding the non-existence of the right of withdrawal.

In general, traders have taken the habit of making the contrary.

-----
Par isernon

bonjour,

see this link on this subject :

<https://www.inc-conso.fr/content/foires-et-salons-pas-de-droit-de-retractation>

salutations